Dear Alistair

I want to thank you warmly and personally for the magnificent contribution you are making to the 'Peers in Schools' programme. I note from the records that in the last three months alone, you have made three visits.

The programme goes from strength to strength and this is entirely due to the work that you are putting into it. Very soon we will be able to say that almost a generation of secondary school students will have had the opportunity to learn about the role that the House of Lords plays in the legislative process – an important aspect of their role as citizens.

We will have a small summer reception again on Weds 23 July in the River Room to share our experiences and to be able to thank you all – but ahead of that date, which we'll confirm later, I just wanted you to know how grateful I am.

Yours ever,
Frances

The Lord Lexden
